

The College Writing Program Proudly Announces the 2009 Undergraduate Writing Colloquium Winners

SOCIAL SCIENCES

Winning Course Paper

Jonathan Garon, "Stabilizing Somalia: A New Approach to State-Building"

Written for: International Security (PSC 277W), Professor Thomas Dolan

Winning Honors Thesis

Angad Raj Singh, "On Presidentialism and Ethnic Conflict"

Written for: Political Science Senior Honors Project (PSC 393), Advised by Professor
Gretchen Helmke

NATURAL & APPLIED SCIENCES

Anthony Alongi, "Multisensory Integration in the Cortical Hierarchy"

Written for: Perception and Action (BCS 151), Professor David Williams

Honorable Mention

Jason Heath, "The Role of ATP in the GroEL/GroES Reaction Cycle"

HUMANITIES

Elizabeth Gabster, "Going in Circles: Atomization and Fragmentation in The Secret Agent"

Written for: English Honors Seminar (ENG 396), Professor Joanna Scott

Honorable Mention

Ben Sabari, "She and the Sea: The Syntax of 'The Idea of Order at Key West'"

WRT 105/105E

Brian Marricco, "'What Sharp Words': Critics of the Wife of Bath and Sovereignty in Marriage"

Written for: What Does Love Have to Do With It? (WRT 105), Instructor Leah Haught

Honorable Mention

Sergei Kriskov, "The American Character and the Left at the Turn of the Century"